FOURTEENTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 2003

Santa Domingo, Dominican Republic

August 2-6, 2003

In every game until the final buzzer, the USA men suffered three narrow defeats in five games to place fourth at the 2003 Pan American Games in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

Coached by Michigan State University's Tom Izzo, the U.S. squad comprised of collegians posted a 2-3 record, losing its three games by one, six, and 12 points in a game the U.S. led by two with just over four minutes left.

The 2003 Pan American Games featured eight men's teams divided into two preliminary groups of four teams each.

The USA men opened the tournament in dramatic fashion, rallying in the final minute to record an 80-79 victory over favorite Argentina on Aug. 2 as Chuck Hayes led the scoring attack with 17 points on 7-of-10 shooting. Trailing 71-63 with 5:37 left, Hayes started the U.S. on the comeback trail with a pair of baskets. Then Rickey Paulding hit a 3-pointer, and after Hayes nailed a pair of free throws, the USA was back on top 74-73 with 2:50 left. Tied at 74, Blake Stepp drilled a 25-foot 3-pointer to give the USA a lead it would not relinquish.

In its second wild ride in as many nights, the USA saw Andre Barrett's baseline jumper rim out at the horn to find itself on the short end of an 86-85 score against Puerto Rico on Aug. 3. The USA was led in scoring by Barrett's 16 points, including 3-of-4 from 3-point range. Arthur Johnson contributed 15 points and eight rebounds.

In need of a victory to advance to medal round semifinals, for the third consecutive night the outcome was decided in the final seconds as the USA fought its way to a 74-72 win over Uruguay on Aug. 4. With the USA leading 73-72 and 29 seconds to go, Barrett reached in to tie up the ball and earn possession back for the USA. Paulding hit the back end of a two-shot foul with eight seconds left to give the U.S. a tenuous two-point cushion, and when Uruguay's would-be game-winning three clanged off the iron as the horn sounded, the Americans had the thrilling 74-72 win. Johnson led the USA effort with 17 points, supported by Barrett's 11 and 10 from Hayes.

Cold shooting at precisely the wrong time relegated the USA to the bronze medal game. With the U.S. leading 76-74 and 4:18 remaining, Brazil went on a 13-0 tear to score a 92-80 victory on Aug. 5. Emeka Okafor scored 18, and the USA's effort was further supported by Hayes' 15 points and game best 13 boards. Paulding contributed 11 points.

Team USA failed to medal at the Pan Ams for just the second time when it fell 76-70 in a rematch with Puerto Rico in the bronze medal game on Aug. 6. The U.S. was within three, 63-60, with 3:49 remaining, but the USA comeback hopes were dashed when Puerto Rico reeled off seven unanswered points to go up 70-60 with 1:22 left to insure their claim on the bronze. The USA was led by Ben Gordon's 12 points, while Okafor scored 10 points and Hayes added 10 points and nine rebounds. Brandon Mouton grabbed a game high 10 rebounds.

Brazil won the gold medal for a second consecutive Pan Am Games after blowing out host Dominican Republic 89-62.

The United States effort was led by Okafor who posted a team high average of 12.0 ppg., Hayes accounted for 11.2 ppg. and a team leading 7.6 rpg., while Johnson finished averaging 10.0 ppg. Barrett, who was credited with 9.2 ppg., led the team in assists averaging 2.4 apg.

THIRTEENTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1999

Winnipeg, Canada
July 31-August 8, 1999

For a second consecutive Pan American Games, 12 of the top players from the Continental Basketball Association (CBA), competed for the USA in Winnipeg, Canada. The CBAers joined together to post a 4-1 record and return with the tournament's silver medal after falling 95-78 to Brazil in the '99 gold medal game.

Beginning preliminary round play on July 31, the USA romped to an impressive 89-48 victory against Cuba. Carl Thomas, a member of the 1995 USA Pan Am silver medal winning team, led all scorers with 17 points, while Damon Bailey, Doug Smith and Michael Hawkins finished with 13, 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The following day, Aug. 1, the Americans claimed a 73-71 win against eventual gold medalist Brazil in a contest that was decided in the final seconds. Travis Williams converted a tough basket after splitting two defenders with 22 seconds to play, and Smith blocked a layup attempt with nine seconds to go as the USA earned the win. Guards Bailey and Hawkins led the U.S. scoring effort with 13 points apiece.

The U.S. wrapped up preliminary play with a 95-83 triumph against the Dominican Republic to head to the medal round semifinals with a perfect 3-0 record. Trailing by 20 points, 45-25, with 7:10 to go before halftime, the USA assembled a mammoth 27-8 run to only trail 53-52 at half. Making eight of its nine free throw attempts over the final 3:42, the U.S. went on to record the 95-83 win. Williams tallied a game best 24 points and added eight rebounds, while Hawkins and Smith each added 13 points to pace the U.S.

In the medal round semis, despite trailing by 10 points in the first half, the U.S. dispatched Argentina 84-76. Reserve guard James Blackwell, who had scored just two points in the USA's first three games, scored seven key points in a span of 1:27 in the fourth quarter to help lift the Americans to the win. Williams finished with a double-double of 19 points and 12 rebounds, and Blackwell finished with 11 points and four assists.

For the third consecutive game, the USA found itself trailing by a double-digit margin in the first half, but this time it was unable to bounce back as Brazil earned a 95-78 win in the gold medal clash.

Leading 49-36 at the intermission, Brazil started the second half by outscoring the Americans 10-3 to move ahead 59-39 with 16:04 to go. The USA went on a 14-2 run to cut Brazil's lead to eight points, 61-53, with 12:00 remaining, but Brazil answered with a 7-2 run to regain control 68-55 with 9:02 to play. The USA made one late charge to cut Brazil's lead to 78-70 with 4:12 to go, but the Brazilians responded by making 12-of-14 free throws down the stretch to secure the 95-78 win and the gold medal. Bailey scored 14 points, and Hawkins finished with 13 points in the loss.

Leading the United States in scoring and rebounding was forward Williams, who averaged 12.8 ppg. and 7.6 rpg. Hawkins, a member of the bronze medal winning 1998 USA Basketball Men's World Championship Team, averaged 11.8 ppg. and a team high 4.6 apg. Thomas, the only returning member of the silver medal winning 1995 USA Basketball Men's Pan American Games Team, averaged 11.8 ppg. and shot a sizzling 58.3 percent (21-36 FGs) from the field, and Bailey averaged 10.0 ppg.

TWELFTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1995

Mar del Plata, Argentina

March 19-25, 1995

The USA's quest to regain the Pan American Games gold medal again fell short as host Argentina twice beat the U.S. contingent and claimed the gold. The USA earned the silver while Brazil captured the bronze.

Because of the March timing of the '95 Pan Am Games, U.S. college players were unable to be considered for this team. Instead, USA Basketball turned to the Continental Basketball Association (CBA), which agreed to allow players from its teams to miss some of the regular season in order to participate.

Opening against host Argentina, with the backing of a raucous sold-out crowd numbering over 8,000 and behind the play of guard Juan Espil, Argentina rallied from as many as 15 points down in the second half to edge the U.S. 68-67. The U.S. either led or was tied for the lead from the 16:30 mark of the first half to the game's final second, however, Argentina's Diego Osella scored the game winning layup with one second remaining to give Argentina the win. Carl Thomas led the U.S. with 14 points, and Kelsey Weems added 12. Espil finished with 27 points, 23 coming in the second half.

One night later the USA watched victory again slip away in the game's final seconds when Brazil's Joao Guia scored on a drive with 15.6 seconds left, and the U.S. failed to score on its last possession as Brazil slipped past the Americans 101-98. Sean Gay led the U.S. with 22 points, and A.J. Wynder added 19. Looking for its first win, the U.S. led from start to finish in a 97-78 victory over Puerto Rico. Thomas led the U.S. with 22 points, Brian Davis added 18, while Scott Paddock finished with 14 points and 17 rebounds, and Chuckie White had 13 points and a game high 18 rebounds.

Squandering a lead late, the U.S. recovered in overtime to capture a 104-96 win over Uruguay as 6-7 White had a huge game for the U.S., recording 23 points and 21 rebounds. Behind 17 points from Dave Jamerson, the U.S. stormed to its third consecutive victory in impressive style, romping to a 104-80 win over Mexico.

Meeting Brazil in the semifinals, Rumeal Robinson scored 22 points as the U.S. avenged its earlier setback with an 89-85 victory to earn a berth into the gold medal game.

Argentina, motivated by another overflowing vocal and partisan crowd estimated at 9,000, held off a late USA rally to capture a 90-86 victory and the 1995 Pan American Games men's basketball gold medal. It was Argentina's first ever Pan Am men's basketball gold medal.

"The crowd was maniacal... You couldn't hear yourself on the court," stated U.S. head mentor Mike Thibault of the crowd.

The first half was all offense, with the two teams combining for 111 points as Argentina held a 60-51 advantage at halftime. In the first half, Argentina shot a sizzling 71.4 percent (20-28 FGs) while the U.S. managed to shoot 59.4 percent (19-32 FGs).

Trailing by as many as 13 points in the second half, the USA rallied to take a 77-76 lead with 6:49 to play. But Argentina outscored the U.S. nine to four over the next 4:23 to grab an 85-80 lead with 2:26 remaining, and the U.S. never got closer than three points again.

Robinson led the U.S. with 18 points, while Martin accounted for 15. Espil was the high scorer for Argentina with 22 points.

ELEVENTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1991

Havana, Cuba

August 3 - 17, 1991

Seeking to recapture the Pan American Games gold medal, which the USA had lost to Brazil in 1987, the Americans again saw their golden dreams dashed as Puerto Rico defeated the U.S. in the semifinals and went on to secure the gold. For the U.S., it was another good showing that failed to realize the gold. The USA finished with a 6-1 record and the bronze medal.

Opening against host Cuba and playing in front of a capacity home crowd, Thomas Hill of the U.S. initiated the competition by shattering a backboard with a pre-game dunk. After a new backboard was in place, the U.S. started slowly and at half trailed 50-47. Dominating the first 15 minutes of the second half and taking control 86-72, the U.S. squad held on in the final five minutes and earned a 92-88 victory as James Jackson scored 22 points on 10-of-13 shooting from the field, and Duke's Christian Laettner added 19 points.

Two days later, the U.S. again suffered through a sluggish first half, posting just a six point lead over Venezuela, 43-37. But another strong second half lifted the U.S. to a convincing 91-66 win as Jackson and Laettner led the U.S. scoring attack again with 18 and 15 points, respectively. Argentina took the Americans to the limit before the U.S. claimed an 87-81 win. With four minutes to play, the U.S. held a 76-75 lead, but four points from Jackson and four from Clarence Weatherspoon in the closing minutes helped lead the U.S. seal the win. Jackson led the U.S. scoring with 17 points, Laettner added 15 and Weatherspoon tossed in 14 points.

After a three-day break, the U.S. returned to the court facing the Bahamas. Jumping out to an 18-0 lead, the U.S. continued its relentless running attack and went on to claim a 116-58 win as six U.S. players scored in double figures. Terry Dehere tallied a game high 21 points, while Jackson and Walt Williams added 19 and 17 each.

Completing pool play with an unblemished 4-0 record, the U.S. disposed of Uruguay 114-68 in the quarterfinals. Jumping out to a 9-0 lead, the USA never looked back as all 12 U.S. players scored in the win, led by UCLA's Tracy Murray's 16 points.

Facing a veteran Puerto Rico team in the semifinals, the USA's golden dreams received a blow when it was learned less than 24 hours before the semifinals contest that Jackson, the USA's leading scorer, would miss the remainder of the competition because of a stress fracture in his left foot.

The U.S. got off to a strong start and at halftime owned a 37-29 advantage over Puerto Rico. With 4:47 to play the Americans led 64-63, but Puerto Rico reeled off eight straight points to take control 71-64 with 1:34 to play. Although the U.S. cut that deficit to 71-68 with 44 seconds left, Puerto Rico made its free throws down the stretch to take the 73-68 win. Williams led the U.S. with 16 points, and Laettner added 14 points and 11 rebounds.

Facing host Cuba in the bronze medal game, the U.S. controlled the first half and led at the mid-way point 56-44. With 13:46 to go, Cuba had rallied to within two, 63-61, but the U.S. regrouped and went on to claim the 93-74 victory and Pan Am bronze. Six U.S. players scored in double digits, with Murray and Williams each accounting for 15 points.

TENTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1987

Indianapolis, Indiana, USA

August 7-23, 1987

The 1987 Pan American Games marked the first time the event was held in the United States since 1959 when the U.S. captured the gold medal in Chicago, Illinois. This year, however, the fate of the U.S. squad was not the same. Upset by Brazil in the championship, the United States was denied the gold medal for just the second time in 36-year Pan American history.

Head coach Denny Crum and the United States squad breezed its way through its first five games, winning by an average margin of over 29 points. Opening against Panama, six U.S. players scored in double digits to pace the USA squad to a 91-63 win. Argentina fell 85-58 to the U.S. as all 12 USA team members scored.

The USA's shooting warmed up in its next three games, and the offense responded with three consecutive 100-point games. Dropping Mexico 105-73, the U.S. shot 59.2 percent from the floor, and Rex Chapman scored 18 points. Defeating Venezuela 109-74 the following day, the U.S. again shot 59.2 percent from the floor as Chapman scored 17 points and 7-1 David Robinson added 17 points and 11 rebounds. Shooting 60.9 percent from the floor, the U.S. beat Uruguay 105-81 as every U.S. member scored, including seven in double figures.

Standing 5-0, the U.S. team received its first test when it locked horns with Puerto Rico in the semifinals. Tied at half 39-39, the USA held a slim 74-72 lead heading into the final minute and eventually posted an 80-75 win thanks to the dominating inside play of Robinson and Danny Manning and a strong defense. The U.S. held Puerto Rico to just 41.2 percent shooting and outrebounded them 47-36. Robinson finished with 20 points and 13 rebounds, and Manning added 20 points and six boards.

With a sold-out Market Square Arena crowd of 16,408 in attendance, the 6-0 USA team took the court against a 5-1 Brazilian team. The U.S. team, which had won 65 of 67 previous Pan American Games, seemed in total control early, cruising to a 68-54 halftime lead. But Brazil, behind international veterans Marcel Souza and Oscar Schmidt, who accounted for 55 of Brazil's 66 second half points, stormed back to capture the win, 120-115. The 29-year old Schmidt put on an offensive display not many will ever forget, scoring 35 second-half points to help lead Brazil to its shocking 120-115 victory over the United States. Schmidt finished the game with 46 points (7-15 3-pt. FGs), and Souza added 31. Despite foul trouble, which limited his playing time to 15 of the game's 40 minutes, Robinson led the U.S. with 20 points and 10 rebounds, while the U.S. scoring was rounded out with Chapman adding 17, Willie Anderson 16, Manning 14, Pervis Ellison 13 (12 rebounds) and Keith Smart tossed in 12.

The United States, which lost only its third contest in the history of the Pan American Games, was led offensively by all-Americans Robinson and Manning. Manning led the squad in scoring averaging 14.6 ppg. and was the team's third leading rebounder, hauling down 5.9 rpg. Robinson was the team's leading rebounder grabbing 9.0 rpg. and was the second leading scorer, averaging 14.0 ppg.

NINTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1983

Caracas, Venezuela

August 14-29, 1983

Featuring a roster filled with future professionals, the 1983 USA Pan American team, coached by Kansas State's Jack Hartman, was as talented a group as any assembled in the history of the Pan American Games. Tested in several games, the United States' solid play offensively as well as defensively carried the team to an unblemished 8-0 record, its third consecutive gold medal, and extended the U.S. win streak to 28 games.

The USA was led by several future NBA standouts -- 6-6 Michael Jordan, 5-11 Mark Price, 6-9 Wayman Tisdale and 6-9 Sam Perkins. Jordan finished the competition averaging 17.3 ppg., while Tisdale pumped in 15.5 ppg. and Perkins added 13.1 ppg. Tisdale and Perkins also topped the U.S. in rebounding, grabbing 7.1 rpg. and 5.9 rpg., respectively.

This USA team flirted with disaster from the start. Outside shooting threat Chris Mullin was forced home before Pan Am competition began after fracturing his foot in an exhibition game in San Juan. The USA ranks were further reduced when inside force Michael Cage returned home after two games because of an illness in his family.

Opening against Mexico, the U.S. men spotted Mexico a 20-4 advantage before rallying to overcome 40.0 percent shooting from the field and capturing a 74-63 win. The Americans' second win was another come-from-behind effort as a Jordan slam as time expired insured the USA's 72-69 win over Brazil. Facing host Venezuela, the USA found itself in another struggle. However, Georgia Tech sophomore guard Mark Price stepped forward and provided the U.S. with the needed spark, scoring 17 points on 8-of-13 shooting to help lift the USA to a 78-65 victory.

Advancing into the final round, the U.S. rolled past Canada 111-97 as Tisdale exploded for 29 points and 12 rebounds. Then, behind Tisdale's 19 points and 18 more from Jordan, the U.S. handed Mexico an 81-68 loss. Next the U.S. recorded a convincing 88-68 victory over Argentina as Jordan accounted for 24 points.

Balanced scoring was the key to the USA's second win over Brazil. Earning an 87-79 win, six U.S. players scored in double digits, including 16 from Jordan and 16 from University of Kentucky guard James Master. Price and Tisdale each added 12, and Perkins and Leon Wood tossed in 10 apiece. Closing out the competition against Puerto Rico, the U.S. scored a 101-85 victory as Tisdale scored 20 points and Perkins added 18 points and 11 rebounds.

EIGHTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1979

San Juan, Puerto Rico

July 1-15, 1979

The 1979 Pan American team was one of the United States' youngest and most explosive squads ever. Behind the coaching of Indiana University's Bob Knight, the USA cruised to a 9-0 record and the gold medal, while averaging 100.8 ppg. It marked the first time that a United States team had averaged more than 100 ppg. in the Pan American Games.

The high-powered offense of the U.S. featured five players who finished the competition averaging in double figures. Led by 6-5 Indiana University junior Mike Woodson, who averaged 18.3 ppg., collegiate All-Americans 6-7 Michael Brooks and 6-2 Kyle Macy contributed 17.4 ppg. and 12.1 ppg., respectively, while Mike O'Koren and Ronnie Lester also averaged in double figures. The USA's talent-laced roster also featured Minnesota junior Kevin McHale and recent high school graduates Ralph Sampson and Isiah Thomas, who would all go on to stardom in the NBA.

Defeating the Virgin Islands 136-88, the USA was led by Woodson's 24 points, while O'Koren and Brooks each tossed in 21 points and Lester added 20. Knight's cagers handed Cuba an 85-53 setback as Brooks scored 16 points on 7-of-9 shooting from the field, while Lester accounted for 14 points and Sampson added 10 points.

Brazil proved a much tougher opponent, but behind a balanced scoring attack that featured five players scoring in double figures, including 19 from Brooks and 17 from Macy, the U.S. recorded an 82-78 victory. McHale's 17 points and seven rebounds helped lift the U.S. over Panama 88-83, and Macy's 17 points pushed the Americans to a 97-76 win over Canada. Woodson tallied a high of 30 points in the USA's 99-73 win over Argentina, then recorded 29-point showings in wins against Cuba and Brazil.

The United States clinched its seventh gold medal in eight attempts with a 113-94 victory over host Puerto Rico. Facing an outstanding team from Puerto Rico that had also compiled a perfect 8-0 mark prior to the Pan Am final, the U.S. relied on its balanced but high-powered offense for the win. Brooks led the USA team in its win over Puerto Rico compiling 27 points and 13 rebounds, while Indiana standout Woodson and future Hoosier great Thomas added 23 and 21 points, respectively.

The winning of the gold medal did not take place without controversy. The first incident was the ejection of coach Knight from the opening game against the Virgin Islands, a contest that the U.S. went on to win 136-88. Knight also later had a run-in with a policeman at a practice session. Another occurrence took place during the second USA-Cuba contest as Macy suffered a broken jaw after being punched by Tomas Herrera of Cuba. Macy missed the final two USA games, while Herrera was only ejected from the game.

SEVENTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1975

Mexico City, Mexico

October 12-26, 1975

The USA team that traveled to Mexico City in 1975 was looking to rebound the U.S. from its disappointing performance four years earlier when the USA failed to advance to the medal round despite a 2-1 preliminary record. This time the tournament setup had been altered, and for the first time in Pan American Games competition a round-robin format was used.

The 1975 USA group, coached by Marv Harshman of the University of Washington, relied on a balanced offensive attack that averaged 98.8 ppg. without an offensive "star," while compiling a perfect record of 9-0 and capturing the gold medal.

Future NCAA All-Americans Otis Birdsong and Ernie Grunfeld, headed the USA's balanced offensive attack, averaging 14.4 ppg. and 12.2 ppg., respectively, while little known and future NBA All-Star Robert Parish, Norm Cook and Johnny Davis also averaged double figures for the gold-medal USA team. Parish and Leon Douglas finished as the USA's leading rebounders.

Behind balanced scoring that saw all 12 USA players score, including 24 points from Cook, the U.S. opened the '75 Games with a 103-62 win over Argentina. Meeting host Mexico and playing in front of 15,000 at the Sports Palace, the USA whipped Mexico 99-70 as Birdsong scored 18 to lead the U.S.

Although Puerto Rico would earn the silver medal in 1975, it proved no match for the U.S. as the Americans cruised to an 85-53 win behind Birdsong's 18 points. Limiting Venezuela to 10 first half points, the U.S. led 43-10 at halftime and sailed to an easy 97-32 win as Birdson and Douglas tossed in 15 and 14 points each. Playing its fifth game in six days, the USA continued to roll as Grunfeld and Cook each recorded 12 points, and the U.S. posted an 87-62 win over defending gold medalist Brazil.

With the U.S. backcourt of Davis and Birdsong accounting for 19 and 18 points, respectively, the U.S. recorded a hard fought 84-73 victory over Canada. Cuba gave the U.S. its toughest test of the Games, but Parish dominated the inside in the USA's 84-78 victory. Parish, who scored 19 points and hauled down eight rebounds, limited Cuba's Pedro Chappe, who had been outstanding in Cuba's upset of the USA in 1971, to just 12 points and two rebounds.

Closing strong, the Virgin Islands were crushed 137-70 as Bruce Parkinson led the way with 25 points, and nine U.S. players scored in double digits. Behind 17 points from 7-1 Wayne "Tree" Rollins, the U.S. finished with a 113-55 victory over the Bahamas, in a game in which all 11 available U.S. men scored and seven reached double digits.

SIXTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1971

Cali, Colombia

July 25 - August 8, 1971

Cali, Colombia, was the site of the 1971 Pan American Games, and the Games proved to be an event that the United States would soon wish to forget. Despite a record of 2-1 in the preliminary round, the USA did not advance to the medal round and, for the first time in Pan American history, did not win the gold medal.

The 1971 Pan American Games basketball competition were marked by several controversies. The first controversy regarded the seeding of the teams by the organizing committee. Relying on three preliminary groups (two consisting of four teams, one consisting of five teams), the top two finishers of each preliminary group were to advance on to the medal round.

The four strongest teams heading into the competition were conceded to be Brazil, Cuba, Puerto Rico and the United States. But Brazil, Cuba and the United States were all placed in the same preliminary group. The three teams finished the preliminary round with identical records of 2-1, however, the USA was eliminated on the basis of margins of victory.

Adding further controversy was the knowledge that the only way Brazil and Cuba could advance over the U.S. was if Brazil defeated Cuba by five points in the final preliminary-round game. That's exactly what happened as Brazil won 73-68, although Brazil had an 11-point lead with 1:50 remaining in the game.

Carrying a 24-game win streak into the 1971 Pan American Games competition, the United States' squad, despite having six players score in double figures, dropped its opening game to Cuba, 73-69. 6-7 Pedro Chappe, a 10-year veteran of the Cuban team, led his squad to the upset with 25 points.

The USA followed that loss with an 81-79 overtime win against Brazil, Brazil's only loss of the competition. 6-9 future NBA legend Bob McAdoo provided the U.S. with the winning margin, hitting a field goal with 15 seconds left in overtime. The USA's winning cause was further assisted by the USA's 15-of-19 shooting from the foul line.

Closing out its preliminary group play with a 128-48 thumping of Surinam, the USA, Brazil and Cuba all finished the preliminary rounds with identical 2-1 win-loss records. Relying on the point differentials between the tied teams (Brazil, Cuba, USA), the U.S. failed to advance on to the medal round. And so, for the first time in the history of the Pan American Games, a team other than the United States returned home with the gold medal as Brazil claimed the title with a narrow 73-71 defeat of Puerto Rico in the finals.

FIFTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1967

Winnipeg, Canada

July 24 - August 6, 1967

The United States' 131-43 opening victory over Colombia was an early indication of just how powerful this team would be.

The USA swept through the preliminary and medal rounds to capture the '67 Games gold medal with an unblemished record of 9-0. Winning its nine games by an average margin of victory of 43.6 points, the U.S. extended its Pan American Games winning streak to 24 straight games.

The United States' squad, which was coached by Hal Fischer who had guided the 1951 USA Pan American Games team to its gold medal finish, was led by the all-around play of two-time Louisville All-American (1968, 1967) and future NBA all-star Wes Unseld. Unseld's 11.6 ppg. average (third on the team), along with his rebounding and passing helped lead the USA to its gold medal finish.

However, Unseld was not the only future NBA standout to contribute heavily to the 1967 squad. 6-3 Jo Jo White, who would go on to star on the 1968 USA Olympic team and in the NBA, and Darel Carrier of Western Kentucky University also were key factors as they topped the USA in scoring with averages of 13.9 ppg. and 12.0 ppg., respectively.

The Americans dominated their preliminary round opponents, easily winning all four games by a dominating margin of victory that was over 55 points per contest.

Opening the preliminary round with an 131-43 thumping of Colombia, the U.S. squad finished the preliminary round with three additional impressive one-sided victories. Pounding Peru 93-37, the U.S. ran roughshod over Panama 122-73, and closed out the preliminary round with an 80-52 decision over Puerto Rico.

The medal round proved almost as easy as the U.S. sailed past its competition to claim the gold. Leading Cuba by just four points at half, 40-36, behind the play of Carrier, the U.S. broke the game open in the second half and went on to claim a 91-71 win, with Carrier accounting for 32 points. Panama was handed a 90-44 setback by the U.S. contingent, and with five U.S. players scoring in double figures, the U.S. easily discarded of Puerto Rico for the second time, 89-53.

Argentina was unable to slow the U.S. in a 106-55 loss, and the U.S. locked up the gold medal by defeating Mexico 93-74.

FOURTH PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1963

Sao Paulo, Brazil
April 20 - May 5, 1963

The United States entered the 1963 Pan American Games in Sao Paulo, Brazil, with the goal of winning the USA's fourth gold medal in as many tries. Winning six games by an average margin of almost 30 points, the USA successfully defended its championship, captured the gold medal and extended its Pan American Games winning streak to 15 consecutive games. But, as had been the case in each of the previous Pan American Games, the USA's gold medal did not come easily.

Head coach Garland Pinholster of Oglethorpe (GA) University guided the squad to one impressive win after another. The closest contest for the American cagers in their six games was a 12-point victory over Brazil.

Opening against Puerto Rico, 6-8 Ohio State junior all-American Gary Bradds scored a team high 17 points, and 6-10 future NBA all-star Willis Reed tossed in 15 points as the U.S. handled Puerto Rico 93-65.

Behind a 14-point effort from Bradds and 12 points from both Melvin Peterson and Jerry Shipp, the U.S. ran by Canada 80-47. Shipp and 6-4 Edgar Smallwood accounted for 18 and 14 points, respectively, as the Americans overwhelmed Peru 104-56. A balanced scoring effort that saw every USA player score was key in the USA's 65-52 win over Uruguay, and Mexico was little problem as Shipp and Lucious Jackson each scored 18 points to pace the U.S. to its 96-54 win.

Facing host Brazil in the final, it was reported that an estimated 30,000 fans jammed the 18,500 capacity stadium for the gold medal game. Leading by five points at half, 36-31, the U.S. team pulled away in the third quarter and went on to record a 78-66 victory. Shipp led the USA with a game high 22 points, however, it was the smallest member of the U.S. squad, 5-8 Vincent Ernst of Providence College, who was credited for paving the way for the U.S. victory over Brazil. Scoring a total of 24 points in the USA's first five games, Ernst accounted for 12 points in the final and was credited with numerous assists and steals, while limiting Brazil's two-time Olympian Wlamir Marques to just six points in the first three quarters of play.

However, the game was not without controversy. Following a scuffle between a Brazilian and USA player late in the game, the crowd proceeded to litter the floor with oranges, paper, ice cream cones and other debris delaying the game's conclusion.

The 6-6 Shipp and 6-6 Donald Kojis led the gold medal winners averaging 15.0 ppg. and 11.5 ppg., respectively, while 6-8 Bradds, 6-3 Melvin Gibson and Reed rounded out the USA balanced offensive attack. Unfortunately, Walter Torrence was forced to return to the United States after playing in the first three games of the tournament because of a death in the family.

THIRD PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1959

Chicago, Illinois, USA

August 27 - September 7, 1959

Held in Chicago, Illinois, 1959 marked the first time that the Pan American Games were held in the USA. Coach Fred Schaus of West Virginia and his 14-member squad marched through the competition with a perfect 6-0 record to capture the USA's third consecutive Pan American Games basketball gold.

For the first time in Pan American Games competition, the USA team was selected in the same manner as the 1956 U.S. Olympic team was. Two all-star teams, one of college players selected by a special committee at the end of the NCAA Tournament and a service squad chosen after the inter-service tournament, plus the first two teams in the National AAU Tournament, met in a three night round-robin tournament.

The college all-stars topped the competition with a 3-0 record and were followed by the AAU Phillips 66ers (2-1), Wichita Vickers (1-2) and the Armed Forces (0-3). The two AAU teams had been further strengthened by the addition of players from other AAU teams that competed in the AAU Tournament. From the tryout, five collegians were selected, three players from the U.S. Armed Forces and six players from AAU teams were named to the 1959 U.S. Pan American Games roster. Schaus, who directed the College All-Stars, was named head coach and Warren Womble of the AAU Peoria Caterpillars, who had served as head coach of the 1952 USA Olympic team, served as Schaus' assistant.

Led by then standout collegians and future NBA legends Oscar Robertson and Jerry West, the closest any team came to the United States was 14 points when Brazil fell to the U.S. men 93-79 in the final contest. Boasting a high powered offense, the USA team also featured a solid defense which limited four of its six opponents to fewer than 58 points. The U.S. squad won their six games by an average of 39.5 points.

Opening against Canada, Robertson scored 21 points and West added 15 more as the U.S. earned a 93-73 victory. A balanced offensive attack that saw 13 of 14 USA players score lifted the Americans past Puerto Rico 89-57. Cuba was no problem as the U.S., behind 19 points from Daniel Swartz, sailed to a 114-46 win. El Salvador fell 101-42 to the USA squad as Burdette Haldorson led the U.S. with 14 points. Mexico was next to fall as Jack Adams tossed in 15 points in the USA's 101-57 win.

In its closest encounter, a 93-79 victory, the U.S. broke open its contest with Brazil early, commanding a 11-4 lead after just four minutes, a 27-11 advantage after 10 minutes and a 51-35 lead at halftime. The "Big O" (Robertson) led the U.S. with 29 points and played just three quarters, while George BonSalle added 19 points, and West and Gary Thompson each scored 11.

The 6-5 Robertson, a three-time college All-American at Cincinnati (1958-60) led the team in scoring, averaging 16.5 ppg., while the 6-3 West, a two-time college All-American at West Virginia (1959-60), averaged 11.3 ppg. Swartz also averaged in double figures for the USA, at 10.2 ppg.

SECOND PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1955

Mexico City, Mexico

March 12-26, 1955

After capturing the gold medal in the inaugural Pan American Games, the United States entered the 1955 Games at Mexico City, Mexico, eager to repeat. Although the USA suffered its first defeat in Pan American competition, the team regrouped and won its final three games to capture the 1955 gold medal.

As was the case in 1951, selection of the 1955 USA Pan American Games basketball team was again no easy task. Originally, the U.S. Olympic Committee announced that the 1955 Pan American Games team would consist of five AAU players, four college players and five players from the Armed Forces.

But because of the game's March competition dates, college student-athletes could not compete. Instead, the U.S. Olympic Committee decided that the 1955 team would consist of seven players from the AAU and seven players from the U.S. Armed Forces. The 1954 AAU champion Peoria Caterpillars were unavailable because they were representing the USA at the 1955 World Championship, so the 1954 AAU runner-up Grialva Buicks of San Diego, Calif., were chosen. A camp featuring 20 of the Armed Forces' top players was held at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base (OH) to determine the Armed Forces' seven players.

A series of games between the Grialva Buicks and the Armed Forces took place in San Diego to determine who would serve as head coach. Lt. Norman Pilgrim was selected as the head coach after his armed forces team claimed two wins over the AAU team, and AAU coach Fon Johnson was named the assistant.

Opening the round-robin competition facing Brazil, the U.S. led 30-27 at half and broke the game wide open in the second half and went on to claim a 78-49 win as Melvin Kelley and Donald Byrd paced the U.S. with 14 and 13 points each. Facing Argentina next, the USA squad fell behind early and at half trailed 29-23. Argentina expanded its lead to as many as 12 midway in the third quarter, but the U.S. rallied and took a one-point lead with about a minute to play. However, three consecutive turnovers doomed the U.S. to its first loss, 54-53. Byrd led the U.S. with 19 points, while Robert Williams added 14.

The U.S. regrouped to claim convincing wins in its final three games. Behind Robert Kenney's 17 points and 15 points from John Hoverder, the U.S. easily disposed of host Mexico 85-55. Cuba proved no problem either, and the Americans won 84-56 as Williams poured in 24 points to lead the way. The USA's final game was another lopsided victory as the U.S. captured a 72-29 win over Venezuela. Williams scored 16 points, and 12 of the USA's 14 players scored.

Thanks to Brazil's 61-57 win over Argentina, the United States, Brazil and Argentina all finished with identical records of 4-1 and in a three-way tie for first. The final medal standings were determined on the point spread between the three teams in their games against each other. Relying on this system, the United States was declared the winner of the gold medal with a plus 28, while Argentina, with a minus three, earned the silver and Brazil, minus 25, was awarded the bronze.

FIRST PAN AMERICAN GAMES -- 1951

Buenos Aires, Argentina
February 25 - March 8, 1951

As an international power, the United States was the favorite to win the gold medal at the first Pan American Games, held in 1951 in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Behind the expertise of co-coaches Hal Fischer of the AAU Blue 'n Gold (Oakland, Calif.) and John Longfellow of Indiana State, the USA proved everyone right as it rolled to a 6-0 record and the inaugural Pan American gold medal.

Selection of the U.S. team may have been the USA's biggest hurdle. With competition slated for February - March, many college student-athletes could not participate because of classes. Because the Games' dates were announced too late for tryouts, the Olympic Basketball Committee decided to select two coach-managers and a team of 14 with seven from the NCAA and seven from the AAU. The committee's first choice to represent the NCAA was the 1950 NCAA tournament champion (NYCC), with the runner-up a second choice. Third choice was the winner of the 1950 NIT Tournament (NYCC), and the winner of the NAIB Tournament was the fourth alternative. After NYCC and Bradley turned down the offer to participate, NAIB champ, Indiana State, accepted. The Phillips Oilers, winners of the national AAU tournament in Denver in 1950, also declined, so the AAU's runner-up team, Blue 'n Gold, agreed to go along with their coach Hal Fischer.

The U.S. team relied on strong rebounding and the fast-break to power its offense and played aggressive man-to-man defense. After defeating its first five opponents rather easily, the average margin of victory in the first five games was more than 25 points, and the United States faced host Argentina in the final.

Played at 1 a.m., more than 25,000 fans packed Luna Park Arena, and it was reported thousands more waited outside. The gold medal game appeared to be a run-away as the USA team jetted out to a 26-8 lead. But foul trouble began to slow the Americans, and by the half the U.S. lead had dwindled to 29-23. Four of the USA's top players fouled out early in the second half (Barksdale, Faszholz, Powell and Leslie), and with just four minutes left, the U.S. held a narrow 50-48 lead. Turning to the stall, the USA escaped with a 57-51 win to capture the first men's basketball gold medal of the Pan American Games.

The United States' inaugural Pan American Games team was led by the scoring of Blue 'n Gold team members Donald Barksdale and Charles O'Neill. Barksdale poured in 22.5 ppg., while O'Neill added 10.7 ppg. To this day, Barksdale remains the only USA player to average more than 20 ppg. in the Pan American Games.
